CALIFORNIA CENTRAL COAST

Grapes were first planted on California's Central Coast in the late 1700s along the famous El Camino Real, “The Royal Road,” where the morning fog last until midday and is followed by afternoon winds and temperate nights. This cool climate creates exemplary conditions for developing high-quality grapes that produce an elegant and vibrant Rosé.

TASTING NOTES

This medium-bodied, refreshing and vibrant Rosé opens with aromas of strawberry, raspberry and currant, enhanced by floral rose notes. With crisp and balanced acidity, the red fruit flavors shine beautifully in the lingering finish. Pair with cured meats, soft cheeses and light pasta dishes.
